

Honoring the past, shaping the future

Juneteenth marks the effective end of slavery in the United States on June 19, 1865. It is a time to recognize the strength, resilience, and lasting contributions of Black Americans, while acknowledging the painful history of slavery and its impact.

This June, take a moment to honor Black voices, celebrate achievements and cultural traditions, and reflect on how understanding the past can help shape a more just and inclusive future.

Your program is here to support your wellbeing during moments of reflection, learning, and connection. Resources include 24/7/365 in-the-moment phone support, coaching, counseling, online courses, videos, and practical tip sheets—so help is always within reach, for you or someone you care about.
